localHERBERT MARCUSE TO DISCUSS 'THE 70'S'
AT UNIVERSITY TUESDAY (MAY 1)

MISSOULA--

Herbert Marcuse (pronounced Mar-cooz-ah), professor of political philosophy at the University of California, San Diego, will present a free public lecture entitled "The 70's: A Decade of Neo-Facism?" at 8 p.m. Tuesday (May 1) in the University Center Ballroom at the University of Montana.

Marcuse, who has been called the leading philosopher of the New Left, is appearing at UM under the sponsorship of ASUM Program Council.

Marcuse, 74, is the author of several books, including "Reason and Revolution," "One Dimensional Man," "Eros and Civilization," and "A Critique of Pure Tolerance, An Essay on Liberation."

He was born in Berlin and educated at the Augusta Gymnasium, Berlin; the University of Berlin, and the University of Freiburg, where in 1924 he received his Ph.D. in philosophy magna cum laude.

In 1933 Marcuse fled from Germany to Geneva, Switzerland, to escape Nazi persecution. A year later he came to the U.S. as a lecturer at Columbia University. He became a U.S. citizen in 1940.

During World War II Marcuse worked as an intelligence analyst with the Army's Office of Strategic Services, and after the war with the State Department's Office of Intelligence Research, where he supervised the preparation of research studies for the Central Intelligence Agency and other similar agencies.

In 1954 Marcuse joined the faculty of Brandeis University, where he taught political philosophy for 11 years before moving to the University of California, San Diego.
